Dairy Ingredients in Food Processing

The Canadian Dairy Commission, in cooperation with the Guelph Food Technology Center, presented a one-day seminar on the use of dairy ingredients in further processing. Presenters offered their knowledge and expertise in areas such as dairy science, dairy ingredients in the baking industry, and sourcing and availability of dairy ingredients.

Mark Lalonde, CDC, presenting on sourcing and availability of dairy ingredients

Over 30 participants benefited from this informative and highly practical seminar which addressed everyday issues facing ingredient suppliers and end users.

Thank you to everyone who attended the seminar and participated in the discussions. Stay tuned for details on more CDC Seminars.

Milk Ingredients Education Fund (MIEF)

The Canadian Dairy Commission (CDC) has developed a funding program designed to support and foster training and education in the science and application of dairy ingredients in further processing.

MIEF is intended for further processors and ingredient distributors who are seeking to improve their knowledge and expertise related to dairy ingredients destined for use in food products and other end uses.

Applications to the Milk Ingredients Education Fund will be accepted by the CDC throughout the course of the 2002-2004 period.
